"NLP cannot be dismissed as just another hustle.

Its theoretical underpinnings represent an ambitious attempt to codify and synthesise the insights of linguistics, body language, and the study of communication systems."

Learn the Language Patterns modelled from some of the worlds most influential communicators

The words we use are chosen unconsciously but they have a special meaning for each individual. Words are anchors for experience. Think of the word "Ice" and you may want to put on a pair of woolly gloves or reach for a "Gin and Tonic" depending on your own representation of the word "Ice", that's nice, but how do you use it? You'll find out....

So, learn how to recognise what type of personality is hiding behind different types of words

Find out how to customise your communication (i.e. become more flexible) for each individual to achieve instant acceptance and same wavelength communication

Learn how to use vague language to achieve agreement and induce a relaxed state easily and effortlessly

Discover how 3 questions can help you to reveal specific information about any concealed subject (like a customer problem)

Challenge and overcome objections elegantly and with ease by learning how to reframe.

How to guide someone in to changing their mind because you know it will be helpful for them when they do.

What moves you? And, What stops you?

Most people are unaware of their unconscious motivators because of that reason, they're unconscious.

Well, here's the thing, your values are what move you or stop you. And, if you knew what motivated you, then of course you'd recognise when you weren't feeling too inspired and when you know why and how you demotivate yourself, you can then choose to change this.

the power to program your thoughts and behaviour"
Norman Vincent Peale

Certain beliefs can limit your success

The beliefs we hold are again held in your unconscious mind. They are easy to spot in our language. They sound something like this..."I can't do that or this" or I should do this or that" Now, here's the problem, if you are holding onto some limiting belief, then this could be the difference between success and failure. One belief changed could change the whole way you do business.

On your Auspiciium NLP Business Diploma you'll be learning how to change your mindset about the things that are stopping you succeeding.

Remember, some people used to think the world was flat and that if they sailed to the horizon, they would fall off the end of the world. Do you think the belief that the world was flat would inspire you to set sail for new shores if you thought you'd fall of the planet? I expect not.

Well we know a belief can change, the question is,

HOW?....TIME TO FIND OUT
